

Pupils raise £1,300

LANGLEY Academy students put their thinking caps on to raise £1,300 for charity at their summer fair.

The pupils decided to host a fair to raise money for their six chosen charities – one for each school house – Slough Museum, AARPI Homes, WWF, The Lord's Taverners, Alexander Devine Children's Hospice and Educated Horizon.

The fair, which was open to parents and carers for the first time this year, included bouncy castles, book stalls, face painting and a Sponge The Teacher stall – which went down a treat with the students.

Vice-principal, Tony Desorh, said: "This was the first time we have networked with the community and it was a really good day – despite the cloudy weather. The students decided which stalls they wanted and the sponge the teacher stall was one of the most popular!"

Keuhne & Nagel, a global logistics company based in Uxbridge, sponsored the event and donated £1,000 towards the stalls.

■ PAINTED: Liveta Montvilaste, Zahira Batool and Simran Mahay with painted faces and hands. 114346